Ethnic Studies Program Expanding

The Ethnic Studies Division at Monterey Peninsula College is expanding to make the division a more comprehensive vehicle for ethnic studies majors and non-majors, and students from all ethnic backgrounds. The first classes, products of this effort, will be debuting in the forthcoming spring semester, according to James Stevenson, ethnic studies division chairman.

Among the new offerings are "The Chicano-American Experience in America," a general survey of the Mexican-American experience in American society. The course provides an interdisciplinary approach to the sociological study of the interaction of Mexican-Americans with the dominant race.

Emphasis will be placed on the social and historical impact that America has had on the Chicano, especially during the twentieth century. Sylvia Apodaca, one of the course's creators, feels that the new Chicano experience course is important because it is a start toward a truly diversified Ethnic Studies Division, and there is a need for this because of increasing communication across racial lines and the need to destroy stereotypes, to halt polarization, distrust and hostility, and to clear a common ground for efforts toward public order and social justice.

"Afro-American Arts" will be taught by Henry Royal, who intends not only to lecture during class, but give his students an audio-visual experience.

Using tapes and films he will cover the vistas of jazz including such artists as Joseph Oliver, Louis Armstrong, Bessie Smith, W. C. Hardy and Leon Bismark Beiderbecke. Art and dance will be included.

Demonstrations by students and professionals will also be an integral part of this course.

Stevenson also mentioned an experiment which had taken place during the fall semester in an off-campus course entitled, "Psychological Effects on the Minority Family." Taking place weekly at the Covell School, this course attempted to make a psychological analysis of minority families in America, placing emphasis on character traits, behavior and attitudes in minority family relationships.

The course served as a study in "taking the class to the community" and got excellent response from local community individuals who would not otherwise have been able to attend the course.

"Psychological Effects of the Minority Family" will be offered at Covell again in the spring semester, and, because of its success, other offerings can now be considered for transfer into the community. As an added enrichment to the ethnic studies division, a course which has had previous success as an evening course, "The American Indian Experience," will now be available in the day. The course, taught by Margaret Adams, surveys the American Indian in his historical and cultural totality, with emphasis given to his relationship with the early American settlers.

Another "experience" course which will be continuing during the evening this coming semester is "Filipino-American History," which is taught by Anthony -panganiban and covers the role of the Filipino-American in the development of the United States, the Filipino-American's heritage, and his contributions to life in the -united States and emphasizes the historical forces which have affected his political, social, economic and cultural status.

Stevenson said the importance of student involvement in helping the division's expansion to evolve. In fact, most of the preliminary efforts for new classes were put forth by the students themselves; finding out what the students on campus wanted in a class and finding out what other colleges offered in comparison, ordering and reviewing textbooks.

"It is important to combine the students' and the instructors' energies, unify goals and produce the academic harmony which will better enable MPC to answer the needs of the community," he said.

For more information call Stevenson at 375-9821, ext. 388.

Notice To Veterans

Bank Predicts Economic Expansion For County

Another year of solid economic expansion looms for Monterey County in 1974, according to United California Bank's (UCB) 11th annual forecast presented recently.

Dr. Raymond Jallow, UCB senior vice president and chief economist, told local business leaders that agribusiness will grow substantially during the year, and that Monterey County will reap the benefits.

Although higher farm prices will reflect well on the processing, wholesaling and transportation sectors of agribusiness, Jallow said, higher production costs will put some pressure on farmers' profits.

Jallow cautioned, however, that the ultimate outcome of the economy in 1974 will depend on the duration of the oil embargo by the Middle Eastern countries.

Total civilian employment should gain by 1,000 new jobs next year -- mostly in trade, services and government -- bringing the yearly average to 90,000 workers.

Despite increased farm mechanization, agricultural employment will remain generally stable during the year primarily because of additional acreage -- mostly grapes -- being put under cultivation.

Unemployment in the county will rise moderately, averaging about 6.3 percent of the labor force, a relatively low rate for an agriculturally-dependent area.

Following a statewide trend, housing permits will decline in 1974 by 600 units, but the year-end total of 2,800 new permits will still represent a healthy volume for the county.

Population growth here will match the California average of 1.1 percent, with a total of 266,000 residents anticipated by year-end.

Personal income will also be on the rise, up $91 million to a $1.53 billion total. Median family income will keep pace, with a gain of $710, reaching $14,040 by year-end. -the increases in income and employment paint a bright picture for the county's merchants, who can expect a $41 million advance in retail sales for a 1974 total of $689 million.

Deadline Is Near ForGrants

The State Scholarship and Loan Commission wishes to remind students to mail their Occupational Education and Training Grant applications by the deadline of January 27.

There will be 500 competitive grants for students who have the aptitude and desire to train for specific occupations, vocations, or technical careers two years or less but no shorter than four months. Grants will pay up to $2,000 for tuition and fees and up to $500 for books, supplies and transportation depending on the student's financial need.

Applications may be obtained from most schools throughout the state or from the State Scholarship and Loan Commission, 1410 Fifth Street, Sacramento, California, 95814, before January 27.

USDA Increases Payments

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has increased its rates of payment to State educational agencies to assist schools taking part in the National School Lunch and School Breakfast programs.

The increases, which will be effective January 1 through June 30, were announced by USDA's food and Nutrition Service (FNS) in another step to implement the provisions of Public Law 93-150, the child nutrition legislation passed in November. The new law provides that the payment rates for school lunches and breakfasts are to be adjusted twice each year, in line with the changes in the "food away from home" series of the Consumer Price Index. This is the first of such adjustments and, as provided by law, it reflects the changes in the period Setpember through November 1973. During that period, the series increased 5.126 percent, and the lunch and breakfast rates announced approximate that amount of increase, rounded off to quarter-cent intervals as provided by law.

In the National School Lunch Program, the national average payment to help defray food costs of each lunch served to participating children will be increased a half cent from 10 to 10.50 cents. Within that average, States are authorized to vary the rate of reimbursement to individual schools up to a maximum 16.50 cents a lunch. Previously the ceiling was 16 cents.

The additional guaranteed payment to assist in the service of lunches to need children will be boosted 2.25 cents -- 37.25 cents for each reduced-price lunch, and to 47.25 cents for each free lunch.

In cases of severe need, the reimbursement to individual schools is also increased 2.75 cents. It can range as high as 62.75 cents for each reduced-price lunch and as high as 72.75 cents for each lunch served free.

The national average payment for each breakfast served to eligible children will be increased one half cent -- from 8 cents to 8.50 cents.

Combined Federal Campaign Ends With Record

Officials of the Monterey County Combined Federal Campaign (CFC) recently announced the total donation figure for the 1973 campaign, a record contribution of $219,895. Thia amount surpasses last year's total of $212,000.

While making the announcement, Army Colonel Charles M. Grandelli, the chairman of the local CFC, expressed his gratitude for all those who made the Monterey County campaign such a success. "This was a tremendous effort," he said, "by both the military and civilian communities working together throughout the county. They are all to be commended for their record achievement."

The new record is a compilation of donated dollars from four major areas in the county: Fort Ord and the Defense Language Institute, the Naval Postgraduate School, and Monterey and Salinas federal employees.

Fort Ord and DLI combined for the largest donation, $153,299 given by some 21,000 employees. In 1972 over 32,000 employees of the two installations donated $152,700.

The Naval Postgraduate School also received a greater donation from fewer people this year. Thirty-two hundred employees contributed over $63,000, as compared to the 1972 total of $57,000 from 3300 NPS workers.

The Salinas federal employees contribution $2700, while Monterey accounted for $900.

Among the primary contributors in the two cities was the U.S. Postal Service: Monterey Post Office employees tripled their 1972 gift, and Salinas postal workers gave a record $1400.

CFC consolidates the dollar appeals of the United Fund, American Red Cross, National Health Agencies and the International Service Agencies into one fund drive for all federal personnel. This year's donation will be allocated to the above agencies as follows:

United Fund of Monterey, Salinas and Watsonville - $75,806; American Red Cross - $80,992; National Health Agencies - $44,608; International Service Agencies - $18,489.

The 1973 CFC was not only a success because of the record amount contributed, but also because of the extremely low administrative cost of 1.7% needed to conduct the drive. Mr. Gil Funston, administrator for the campaign calls it "one of the lowest costs of all the nation's CFC programs."

Agriculture Gets Top Fuel Priority

The announcement recently by the Federal Energy Ofice that U.S. Agriculture will be guaranteed 100 percent of current needs for gasoline and diesel fuel to produce the food the nation needs came as good news to the country's farmers, processors and distributors, particularly those in California.

State Food and Agriculture Director C. B. Christensen said that California pressed strongly for agriculture to be number one in priority, and the fact that it received this status can be attributed in good part to our efforts.

Agriculture is the state's biggest industry and nearly $8 billion in cash farm recipts last year, State Food and Agriculture Director C. B. Christensen reports. California accounts for about 10 percent of the nation's total farm production value.

"The announcement that agriculture will be allocated all the gasoline and diesel fuel it needs to do its job, even if other users have to be cut back, points up the obvious fact that the production of food and fiber is the basic need of our country and its people," Christensen said.

"However," he cautioned, "the new regulations clearly state that no agricultural user shall accept or use these supplies in excess of his current requirement. This means that these fuels may not be used for transportation, unless directly connected with agricultural production, or sold or diverted to any other purpose.

"Since other industries or users may have to tighten their belts in order that agriculture can meet its needs," he added, "then we have not only the legal responsibility for the moral obligation as well to make sure that these allocations are used only for the purpose intended."

Christensen said that the new regulations also provide that other fuels such as propane, butane, aviation gas, heating oil, and residual fuel oils will be available to agricultural production to meet current needs, but that in time of short supply these may be reduced proportionately if supplies are insufficient.

Agricultural production is defined in the new regulations from the Federal Energy Office as "... commercial farming, dairy, poultry, livestock, horticulture, forestry and fishing activities and services directly related to the planting, cultivation, harvesting, processing and distribution of fiber, timber, tobacco and food intended for human consumption and animal feed."

OST Calls For Increase In Research

Lt. Governor Ed Reinecke stated recently that the state Office of Science and Technology has called for an accelerated research and development program in California to curb the energy crisis.

Earl Davis, Director of the Office of Science and Technology (OST), presented a research and development report to the Energy Planning Council at its meeting January 9.

Davis and his office prepared the report with the cooperation of Lawrence Livermore Laboratory and Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, chairman of the Energy Planning Council, said the report has been taken under study.

"This report," Reinecke said, "is an important first step toward California solving its energy problems. Not only does it give us some firm recommendations regarding ways to best coordinate the many research and development activities in relation to energy, but is also pinpoints the various energy sources, and when they can be expected to be operational."

Davis said the report recommends that OST be designated as the monitoring group within state government for all energy related research and development activities.

Davis also said it stresses the importance of strong environmental protection research and development to offset potential environmental problems which could be created because of the mandatory need for increase energy source projects.

The report specifies the following sources for additional energy: nuclear, solar, goethermal, coal, oil shale, and solid waste.

These new energy sources were separated into three time spans -- short term, within the next two years; mid-term, two to five years; and long term, five years or more.

The short term sources included: energy conservation, power plant siting requirement studies; rail transportation; car pooling; and rpid transit.

Mid-term sources included: research and development into expanding offshore oil supplies; geothermal; non-fossil fuels; and solar energy.

Long term sources included: massive geothermal; solar; nuclear; oil shale; coal; and solid waste.

Dabis said research and development projects must begin now, if the state is to have new energy sources in operation two years from now -- by 1976.

"The next two years," Davis said, "we will have to rely on energy conservation, and the general public to change its lifestyles, if we are to help alleviate the energy situation."

The Office of Science and Technology reports to Lt. Governor Ed Reinecke, science advisor to Governor Reagan.

MPC Child Care Center Has Openings

The Child Care Center at Monterey Peninsula College has openings for the spring semester, according to Mrs. Doris Mark, child care director.

The child care services are available only to students attending classes at MPC. Preference will be given to low income students but all applications are considered, she said.

Student-parents whose children are enrolled in the center are required to take Home Economics 535, "Child Care." The class is designed to give parents an opportunity to discuss problems and anxieties which commonly arise in child raising.

The program is open to all children between two and five years of age, and the child must have reached the age of two before Feb. 1. The center is open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily.

How To Save Gas

Results of tests conducted by the California State Automobile Association confirmed that minor engine tune-ups and reduced speeds do add up to substantial fuel savings.

Two sets of tests were conducted at the CSAA Diagnostic Center in San Francisco. The first showed that a minor tune-up would improve gasoline mileage by an average of 9.6 percent. The other indicated that driving at 55 m.p.h. rather than 65 m.p.h. would save 12.2 percent in gasoline consumption.

While different results would apply to each individual vehicle, the CSAA is convinced that important reductions in fuel can be achieved if motorists would merely keep their motors tuned and drive at modest speeds. Further savings can be achieved by practicing good driving habits such as even throttle pressure, gradual starts and stops, avoiding prolonged idling, and limited use of air conditioning.

A 15% ELECTRIC CUTBACK IS NOW AN URGENT NECESSITY.

The California Public Utilities Commission has concluded that the "overall fuel supply situation for California is not sufficient to meet foreseeable generating needs."

It therefore prohibited certain uses of electric energy and ordered PG&E and other electric utilities in the state to inform customers—business and industry as well as homes—of the urgent necessity to "devote full efforts to achieving a minimum 15% reduction in their normal use of electricity."

This is the second emergency measure the Commission has taken to deal with the energy crisis brought on by the shortage of oil to fuel electric generating plants. The already serious oil supply situation has been compounded by the Middle East oil embargo and Department of Defense preemption and diversion of fuel oil supplies destined for the civilian market, the Commission order stated.

How and where to cut back 15%. Use this chart to find where you and your family can cut back 15%.

*KWHRS stands for kilowatthours. Electric power is measured in watts, like gasoline is measured in gallons. All electric appliances and light bulbs are sized, or rated, in watts. Some time ago, someone took the Greek word "kilo" (meaning 1,000) and joined it to "watt." The term kilowatt is simply an easy way to say 1,000 watts. A kilowatthour, then, is 1,000 watts of power used for one hour. One kilowatthour will run a 100 watt light bulb for 10 hours.

The shortage could last through 1976

According to Commission estimates, the energy shortage may be between 10 and 20 per cent of normal usage for the years 1974, 1975 and 1976. So all of us must do our part.

Many businesses and homes already have reduced their electric use substantially. But the overall reduction achieved so far has not been enough to offset the fuel shortage.

If the 15% reduction is not achieved, additional mandatory measures affecting everybody will have to be ordered. The alternatives could be rotating brownouts with all the human hardships and economic difficulties involved.

The situation is serious. It is urgently necessary that you do your part in this crucial situation. And urge your friends and neighbors to do the same.
